Advanced Care for Liver Disease

The Atlantic Health Liver Disease and Transplant Program at Overlook Medical Center provides comprehensive services for individuals with a wide range of sudden or chronic liver disease including fatty liver, cirrhosis, hepatitis, liver cancer and liver failure.

Our interdisciplinary treatment team, including hepatologists, gastroenterologists, liver surgeons, oncologists, and interventional radiologists work together to provide each patient with thorough, accurate diagnostic testing and individualized, effective treatments. This may include innovative, minimally invasive liver surgery and advanced liver disease treatments.

When a Transplant May Be Needed

For advanced cases, a liver transplant may be needed. Transplant care is offered in coordination with NYU Langone's Transplant Institute, which treats the most complex liver conditions and maintains an excellent post-transplant survival rate.

- › Advanced care with superior outcomes
- › Coordinated, personalized treatment
- › Now made more convenient

NYU Langone's renowned liver and transplant specialists first evaluate your condition at Overlook Medical Center in Summit to weigh your treatment options and determine whether a transplant is the best approach. If needed, surgery is performed at NYU Langone in New York City, and all post-hospital follow-up care is again conveniently coordinated on site at Overlook, as needed. What's more, Overlook and NYU are connected electronically so medical records can be easily shared. Your referring physician continues to stay involved, ensuring your care is coordinated and personalized throughout your transplant journey.
